THERE are certain fixed laws which govern our in any way, and discease stalks on apace; and yet how few are there who are sufficiently impressed with this truth; or, being impressed with it, how few resist temptation? How few, when the improvidence of their conduct is shown to them, turn from the pash that leads to death? And again how few are there who, when once they have contracted a habit or vice, are able to shake it of? How miserable is that unfortunate being so circumstanced! He knows not where to turn for advise—he dare not conflic in his friend, he fears to trust his secret to his family physician: thus the disease or vice cate like a canker-worm into his soul—he becomes an emeciated, gloomy, melancholy, consumptive men; or his intellect gives way, he evades society, his mind becomes less retentive than before, and in a short time disolory commences.

OPE'S CKLEBRATED STATIONS, Lower Macquarie, at the Mole.—PITT and SULLIVAN have received instructions from the executors of the late Joseph Cope, Eq., to dispose of, by private sale, all those valuable and well known stations situate on the Lower Macquarie, at the Mole, in the Wellington district, tegether with S00 (more or less) carefully bred quiet cattle of the well known at the Mole, in the Wellington district, together with S00 (more or less) carefully bred quiet cattle of the well known C.O.P. brand, with stock horses, streak &c.

The property consists of 11 blocks of land, all adjoining each other, and a never-failing supply of water, having a river frontage of about 17 miles; in addition to which are two creeks (he Narrow and Creoked) running through these stations. The improvements consist of men is lute, stockyards, &c., distant from each other about seven miles, all in complete working order. The graine capabilities of these stations are equal to 15,000 head of cattle, or 50,000 sheep; and having been selected by the late proprietor, whose judgment in the choice of runs was universally soknowing degree, it of itself a sufficient guarantee of their high character; and as he devoted many years to their improvement, regardless of expense, they have become canjointly one of the best and most complete pastoral properties in the colony—and, in fact, fat stock have always been procurable from these stations in the most unfavourable seasons.

With the butchers the cattle are held in high estimation, the breed having been particularly attended to; the bulke being constantly cheaped, and purchased from the best breeders, such as the Mesers. Lee, Cox, Christie, A. A. Company, &c. Another greet advantage with regard to the capabilities of these stations is, that from their being all in one block, and so extensive, the proprietor oan always keep the cattle from trespessing.

Murphy must be admitted to examination. Hoter could not see that the Court could have taken asher course than it did. Their rules require that an industrial substant and an arrived at a consistency of the court could have taken and the court could have taken as questions should be put to the attorney with whom maked cloth adversed had served faithfully. To sepastions Mr. Hellyer had, as respected the present that whether the clerk had served faithfully. To sepastions Mr. Hellyer had, as respected the present local, returned unfavourable answers, but in some of answers had declared that, having stated such facts the question of faithfull service to the Court (not to raisings). With such statements before them the misrs would not proceed to the examination of the action first obtaining a direction to that effect from a court. Mr. Hellyer must have foreseen the probability as the court of the c asits, and had invited Mr. Hellyw to attend to oppose if be incupit fit. Mr. Justice Wise had at a former stage of the proceeding expressed some doubt as it o whether express states of the intention to use sindaytic output not to have been given. He (the Chief Justice), however, thought that the notice was quite sufficient. The questions which the cliek had to meet were questions of fact, which could nily be satisfactorily mee by affidevit, and, knowing this Rr. Hellyer had a right to assume that affisivits would petably be used. The Judges did not suppose that Mr. Hellyer had a right to assume that affisivits would petably be used. The Judges did not suppose that Mr. Hellyer had a right to assume that affisivits would petably be used. The Judges did not suppose that Mr. Hellyer had have upon the facts which he did stated he could rully have given any other answers han be had. He (the Chief Justice) did not mean to say that Mr. Hellyer had answared any of these questions unruly, but he thought that gentleman had taken an encouse were of the kind of answers he was bound to give. It was not because a clerk had been absent from his dice on a few cocasions, or had not strended to one or two naties of business to his principal's entire satisfaction, in the course of several years, that he should be socoused of neglest, and deprived for life of the chance of earning his lead. The real question was whether, upon the whele, he had served faithfully. The answers of Mr. Hellyer were such as, without a fuller statement of facts, to raise were judge given under the infinence of versation and strong felling, and might have been different if given after nore caim reflection. He by no means however, assumed that they were given under any in-there of mere spite against this young man become had not not be a pife fact, had unnocessarily introduced disguests as to hir. Hellyer himself having been abend the had been abend the had been about to have been different in the to have been different to have been their includes disguests

Again, the affidavits ought to have been filed intentity, and interead of that had been kept back for some days, having been published in the Herold in the intrin. Although there was no evidence that they had get there by the clerk.—

Mr. Stephen here assured the Court that (as he was instructed) the clerk. Had nothing to do with the publication, but that the Keporter had asked the attorney to let him see the papers and that the attorney had handed them to him. The attertey knew nothing of the publication.

The Chaf Justice expressed himself satisfied with this searner, but added that the publication of the affidavits aliase out pled Mr. Hellyer to come to the Court and to the affidavits in explanation. Under the circumstances, therefore, they would not compel Mr. Hellyer to pay the cost of three additional affidavits, but should leave each party to bear his own costs.

Mr. Justice Wise was also of opinion that the applicant lai male out his right to be admitted to examination. The old woman was, whether Mr. Hellyer should pay the cote of three additional affidavits, but should leave each party to bear his own costs.

Mr. Justice Wise was also of opinion that the applicant had made out his right to be admitted to examination. The only question was, whether Mr. Hellyer should pay the rosts. The sawers which had been given by the latter indeed to create erroneous impressions as to the conduct of his clerk, and it would have been better if, instead of returning such answers, he had stated more distinctly and in detail the matters of which he complained. Mr. Hellyer's affdavit having been hastily drawn, also contained a statement which, at first sight, tended to induce an erroneous conclusion. But the affidavits of Mr. Murphy also contained evidence of their having been made with some segree of acrimony against Mr. Hallyer, and it was upon the whole just that costs should not be awarded as either ride. The Court had no desire to encourage stricked clerks in any neglect of daty, et o discourage a shir statement by attorneys of any ground of complaint which they might have; but it was their duty to guard spainst injustice. His Henor also thought has one of the affidavits had been published, Mr. Hellyer had a right, if he thought fit, to get the whole of them published. We reserve the affidavite, with an avoved intention that he did so with a view to publication, and did not merely sake "to see the paper."

Mr. Darvall, Q.C., opposed the application, upon the ground that the damages awarded were less than £500, and as none of the other grounds of appeal provided for existed hera, an appeal would not lie. He cited decisions of the Court upon this point.

Their Honers, upon this ground, dismissed the application, with costs.

SPECIAL CRIMINAL CASE.

This was a special case from the last sittings of the Eureme Court, in its criminal jurisdiction, at Darlinghunt. The prisoner had been indicted for forging and sitting, and convicted of the latter offence. Two objections was related-first, that the learned Judge who presided at the trial (Mr. Justice Wiso) had improperly rejected contain richnese sought to be gone into for the defence; secondly, that his Honor had improperly reserved the crear-manisation of a witness (Mr. J. Byrnes) until the following day.

Mr. Windeyer appeared in support of the objections, and Mr. Darvall, Q.C. in support of the conviction.

The priserer had been convicted of untering a forged cheque drawn in favour of Mr. James Byrnes. The cheque itself was genuine, the only former yellong an alteration of the date. But it had been treated as lost, and other cheques itself was genuine, the only forth case for the Orean against Chub was that a comment of the date. But it had been treated as lost, and other cheques had (one aguarantee and with prisoner's knowledge) been substituted for it. Part of the case for the Orean against Chub was tended on the evening of the same day when he uttered this cheque he attempted to show that there were reasons arising out of his business as confidential circ Chub's attempt to get away from the colony. This Honers suntained the conviction. As to the first viberious they thought it clear that the originace ought to have been gone into had been tendered in order to saligue our embarrase the jury; or perhaps, so far as the prison was a consense of the prison was a consense of the prison of the prison was a consense of the prison of the prison of the prison of the prison was consensed the cheque and resulting the gone into had been tendered in order to happen a consense of the prison of the pr judgment. The tale required that an ascount of what was justly due should be made "by the plaintiff," or, in his absence, by his attorney or agent. The objection was that the bank being the plaintiff this affidavit by the clerk could not be said to be an affidavit "by the plaintiff." It was contraded on the other hand, this rule did not apply to corporations, inasmuch as it would prevent corporations from recovering such debre at sil. Their Henore held that the rule did not include corporations, and distalseed the application, but without costs.

EX PARTE ARED.

This was an application by problibition to set aside certain proceedings by the Maitland Bench, upon neveral grounds, the principal of which was that the magistrate, Mr. E. D. Day, had refused to take the evidence of the defendant on his own teball, or ntrary to the decision of the Court in the case of Pender v. Ward, although attention was drawn to this case at the time. case of l'ender v. Ward, although stiention was drawn to this case at the time. Costs against the magistrate were asked unon the latter ground.
Mr. Windeyer appeared in support of the application.
Mr. Stephen admitted that the defendant ought to have been admitted as a witness, and that upon this ground the order was unsustainable.
Their Henors granted the prohibition with costs as against the complainant, not the magistrate, and without prejudice to the right of the former to apply de nove.

The Americanes Dying Out.—A correspondent of the Kilmore Examiner says that the Goulburn tribe of aborigines are reduced in point of number, to a mere fraction. A few more years and probably the race will become extinct. Their King, "Billy Anderson." died about a year ago; his two wives, Mary and Eliza, who was exceedingly prepossessing in her appearance, met with a cruel death on the gold-fields of Ballaarst. A ron of the late King, a smart intelligent youth, is living as hired servant with Mr. James Jones, of beymour. The only notable person in the tribe, is "old woman Mary," who went by this name twenty-five years ago, so that ahe must be close to fifty years of sge. Notwithstanding her advanced years, she is as lively as a girl of fifteen, and as playful as a kitten. She always goes about accompanied by members of her own family, consisting of sons, daughters, and a tribe of grandchildren. They spend most of their time at Seymour, and owing to their quiet behaviour, they are liked by the inhabitants of the place, and partly provided for.

Daals of an Anonions in a Drunken Row.—The Criminal Court was occupied during the whole of Saturday in the trial of William Symes for the murder of Buckley, an aborigine, at Taibot, on the 28th June, 1862. The principal evidence against the accused was that of Martin, a young and very intelligent lad of the same tribe as the deceased. He did not, however, understand the nature of an oath; and after being cautioned by the Judge to tell the truth, his testimony was taken under the provisions of the Act of Council. Buckley evidently met his death in a drunken row, as it seemed that a number of blacks had collected at the prisoner's tent, and that they had all got drunk together. The jury returned a verdet of mandaughter, and added a rider consuiring the conduct of two men.—Fountain and Kiddy—who lived near the scene of the occ

The schoolroom was well filled with a respectable and attentive audience.—Camden: The annual meeting of the Camden branch of the Bible Society was held in the Wesleyan Chapel on the 22nd instant; the Rev. W. McKee in the chair. Mr. J. B. Martin read the report, which stated that the causes which operated against the society last year have increased in severity, and that new calamities have fallen upon the district to an extent which has nearly dried up its resources. Collectors have been discouraged from attempting their work, and the dona'ions obtained have been chiefly from friends whose incomes have not been solely dependent upon the seasons. The history of the colony does not furnish a parallel to the succession of disasters which have fallen upon the agricultural interest within the last feur years, and as the population is almost wholly dependent upon the serious have been limited, as they are generally purchased by the Protestants in the district, and without an accession of population the demand is not likely to increase. pines hoursh to great advantage. There is the Kauri pine, which is pretty well known; the Totara, the foliage of which rises to a head like the Scotch pine. The Rimo is perhaps the most graceful. It has a red bark, and the tree grows to a great height. The kahaiskatea, or white pine, produces the tawers fruit, which is succulent, and like the white of an egg, and acmewhat of the cactus tribe. The flower is white and sweet, like honey. Matal, or black pine; miri, which is a turpentine description. The tree which is most seen is the purit; which is black, and bears a red berry. The leaf is dark green, something like the walnut, while the bark is of a light yellow colour. In this tree is found a grub which makes a capital bait for fish. The wood is very durable, and is used for the basement of houses. The nikau is a palm pith, and is used by the Maories for thatching their wheres or huts. The mamaku is a black fern tree. The head of this is eaten by the natives, and tastes something like the Brazil nut in flavour. The rats is also very abundant, and grows very quickly. The tawa grows in wreaths, and gradually winds round its next neighbour; and a large number of the parasites gradually kill the parent, and very curiously form a new tree. It bears a red flower. The tawa bears a fruit like a prune, and the natives believe that the pigeosa which make a noise like the pronunciation of the name of this tree, swallowed a tawa stone, and still continue to call out. It is a soft wood of good grain. The kohi-kohi very much resembles the horse chestaut, and bears a similar flower. Miri is the toughest wood of all; it is of a light green colcur, with a pretty pointed leaf. It is a favourite saying with the natives, when they wish to show their determination, to liken themselves to the miri. The bark of the hinon makes a considerable height. Flax also grows in abundance. Of the shrubs the karska stands foremost. It has a light bark of a yellowish green and a rough foliage, semething like the magnolia, and bears a yellow berry

WEST MAITLAND.

WEST MAITLAND.

[PROM OUR SOURRESPONDENT.]

THE VOLUNTERES.—On Thursday evening there was a special full-dress parade of the West Maitland volunteers, who all appeared in their new uniform. The band played for the first time this season, and is much improved during their recess. The paradeground has been lighted with a new and brilliant gas-lamp. A very large number of persons assembled, and seemed to enjoy the evening's amusement. The band will continue to perform, weather permitting, every Thursday evening, from eight to ten p.m.

JUVENILE BAZAAR.—A juvenile bazaar was held in Mrs. Hillcoat's schoolroom, High-street, West Maitland, on Thursday aftermoon, in aid of the funds for the payment of the gas-fittings at St. Paul's Church. A good number of persons attended during the evening. The sum realized smounted to £11 19s. 6d. It is to be opened on Priday and Saturday, by which time a considerable sum will no doubt be added to the before-mentioned tund.

The MUNICIPALITY.—It is to be hoped that the Government will not be long before they officially declare the town of West Maitland incorporated. Some little time has row elapsed since the required notice expired. It is most desirable that the corporation should be in full working order before the summer is over, in order that preparations may be made to repair the streets before the west weather again sets in.

Several evenings during the half year had been devoted to recitations and debates, hesides some eight lectures that had been delivered. The library had been increased, and now numbered 145 well selected beeks. The committee were most anxious that special exertions should be made to increase the library, and trusted that the society would continue to prosper and increase. The treasurer's balance sheet showed a sum of £20 3s. 3d. to the credit of the society. After the adoption of the reports had been moved and seconded, the evening was devoted to recitations, and to the reading of a very able essay on "Success," by Mr. H. E. Cohen. The only drawback to the evening's entertainment was the late hour to which the proceedings extended.

Tonacco Factories.—The proprietors of the different tobacco factories have reduced the wages from 5d. to 4d. per lb. for twisting. This reduction has caused a strike amongst the warkmen, and a good many hands have left. It is, however, expected that they will go to work next week at the reduction.

MURRURUNDI.

MELANCHOIT ACCIDENT.—On Wednesday, a fine little boy, aged ten years, son of Mr. Whitfield, builder, of this township, was found floating in a waterhole in the river Page, which runs through this place. It appears the poor child had attempted to cross the river on a fallen tree, which has for months been used as a crossing-place at that part of the river, and must have fallen in. It is singular that this day fire years past, the son of Mr. Cohen of this town was drowned near the same spot while bathing.

HITE FROM A SNAKE.—Yesterday, a commercial traveller, on route for Armidale, saw a large black snake basking beside the head of the new cutting be yond Doughboy Hollow. He pulled up, and procured a stick, and struck the snake, which sprung up and fell back upon his chest, he put his hands up, and the snake bit him in the palm of the left hand. He states he was from fright for a time insensible; however, when he recovered he went to his vehicle to drink the contents of a bottle which had nearly a pint of strong brandy in it, sucked the prints of the fangs, and drove into town as fast as she could, nino miles away. Upon his arrival for medical treatment, the wound was well scarified and Dr Berneastle's antidote applied as directed. After being two hours at Dr. Gaden's dispensary he left apparently nothing the worse for anything but the brandy.

"Doubtless," replied a friend, "if you get much practice."

Mentality or Blibain.—A meeting of the council was held on Mondey, the 19th instant. Members present—the Chairman (Mr. Waiter Church), and the council or Beattle, Elliott, Evans, Mamsey, Rountree, Romald, and unciliors Beattle, Elliott, Evans, Ramsey, Rountree, Romald, and unciliors Beattle, Elliott, Evans, Ramsey, Rountree, Romald, and unciliors Beattle, Elliott, Evans, Ramsey, Rountree, Romald, and unciliors Beattle, Elliott, Evans, and the council of the state of the proceedings of the previous meeting street. The BRICKLAYERS.

The number of bricklayers in and sround the city is about 350. These artizans are, in comparison with the other trades, fewer in number than is the case in Britain, in consequence of so many of the buildings here being constructed of stone. As a class, the bricklayers seem to have turned their hands readily enough to other pursuits when they found they could not all obtain employment at their own trade, and have not—or at least to the same degree as other trades—entered upon a competition with the contractors and builders to secure employment directly from propieters. To some extent they did so, but with them the system of tendering on their own account has for some time been decreasing, and the majority of the men are now working for employers, and are paid either by the piece or by the day; mostly, however, by the latter method. Partly, perhaps, this is due to the circumstance that bricklayers have not the general knowledge of the building trade that the carpenters and masens have, their work not mixing them up so much with it. However this may be, there is little doubt that they are better off jogging on with employers than those classes which have endeavoured mere to do for themselves. Work is tolerably brisk with them, and there are few who are not earning 10s, per day. Some are not obtaining more than 9s., but these are the minority. The trade seems to be fettered by no regulation, and the good wages are maintained by the bona fide demand for the labour. There are few instances to be met with of the men working at jobs for themselves at prices which have engasvoured mere to do for themselves at prices which are probably more the result of miscalculation than of an effort to obtain employment by accepting wages below the standard. At the same time it must be remarked that there are many bricklayers not following their trade, and that the number in it has always been found ample, and sometimes more than sufficient, for its requirements. Their work, wh ing for good house property, and few new investments taking place in it—the bricklayers appear to have little to complain of.

The Plastering trade is at present very much overdone, and has been so for some time past. There are now about 300 plasterers following their occupation in and around Melbourne, and there is not work for anything like that number. The consequence of this is, that, though the nominal wages are as high as in other trades—9s. to los, per day—many of the men are not earning these rates. The competition for employment is so keen that the builders find it advantagous to let the labour at their works, finding the materials themselves; for though the men will not accept less than current rates from a master, they will work in this manner, en their own account, at a considerable reduction. The system of sub-contracting, and sub-letting, is pushed to a greater extent in the plastering than in any other trade. Any one of the artizane may be journeyman to-day and master to-morrow. There are few firms left to whom a man out of work can apply for employment. A plasterer has here to depend for work upon his own smartness in looking about him, and very often he spends a week in finding another seven-days job. This competition leads to piecework being taken at very low rates; so low, that in many cases the men cannot afford to do justice either to the job or to themselves, but adopt a slapdash mode of execution which ultimately falls heavily up on the proprietor. In a number of instances the work cannot be properly performed under the existing system. "Scaffolders," as they are termed—the men who do the rough plastering work—may get on tolerably well, but for the preparation of internal ornaments shop secommodation is required, and this not being in existence the work has to be badly executed in the building. There are firms who employ artizans at good wages by the day, and have their work done carefully and well, but for the preparation of internal ornaments also psecommodation is required, and this no sinh a parallel to the accounts of disaster which have fallen upon the agricultural interest within the last four years, and as the population is already with they are now fairly endersouring to addition to make but the population is already with the pulled upon a former comes most distered many controlled by the production of the pulled upon a former comes and there were the pulled upon the sales of Scriptures have been limited, at they are greaterly purchased by the Protestand of population the domaid is not likely to increase. It is not of 20 has been forwarded to the Sydne and the pulled upon the p districts pays their judges; and, Mr. Speaker, is the servant to tail the master he does wrong? (Laughter.) You may talk about the Judges' dignity; who places them there? (Laughter.) Suppose the Parliament says No, we won't have them, would they have been judges? Its plain enough, Mr. Speaker. We said we had confidence in them before, but I must say, now I have little confidence in their dignity. (Hear, hear.) If men let themselves down so very low, I say they don't deserve the confidence of the Homes; and, as some one said just now, the seoner they go the better, and let us get a pair of fresh horses! (Loui laughter) Weil, if they re not horses, they're animals with very long ears. (Renewed laughter.) Talk about the dignity of the Judges! Then they say they will go to the Duke of Newcastle: who is the Duke of Newcastle? (Loud laughter.) Will he turn the Speaker out of the chair, and us sut of this House? (Renewed laughter). What are they going to do? Are they going to intimiste us and the whole country? If they do their duty as judges no one will find fault with them—not a soul—no one will find fault? Something was said which is not liked; but when they come to talk here, and impuga the gentlemen of this House, whom I consider their superiors (loud laughter.) Lay, I feel myself as good as any one of them judges! (Kisar, hear, and renewed laughter). Then they turn round on us and say—why, its all a pook of rubbials! (Laughter.) I voted with the minority before; I did not without the Mouse; we are sent to represent the district, and we are bound to keep up the dignity of the House; we are sent to represent the district, and we are bound to keep up the dignity of the House. Why, as far as I can understand, they, and they want to do without the House in the party of the House is the party of the House. The hon the Speaker ruled as far as any one could rule, and then to be teld by these gentlemen that he did wrong, and go to the Governor, and write to the Duke of Newcastle to chuck us all cut of the House! Why, as a notice of the Internstional Show at Hamburg, e Mark Lane Express makes the following observa-

Freach exhibitions seem to have achieved some success at the International Agricultural Show lately held at Humburg. Great exhibitions are especially advantageous when they give rise to numerous sales, and this has been the case at Hamburg. Some fine animals from the sheepfold of Rambonillet sent to the exhibition by M. Daurier were sold at high rates. Several sheep of the silky Mauchamp breed were also purchased with curiesity, but the animals which sold most readily were the merinees of M. Garnot of Genouilly, M. Leftbre of St. Escobille, and M. Ball-leau of Illiers, all three of whom received prizes. Two draws of M. Garnot sold at $160, two other rams at $60 each, and ten ewes which he also exhibited made $400. The purchase was made by Herr Maltrahn, of Leushow, Mecklenburg, one of the largest lived of process of genmany. Herr Maltrahn cultured he process of genmany. Herr Maltrahn cultured he process of genmany. Herr Maltrahn cultured he be manufactures large quantities of cheese, which her animous entirely forwarded to England. M. Lefebre sold a ram and nine ewes for £800. It is important to remark that the Negretti brood, remarkable for to remark that the Negretti brood, remarkable for to remark that the Negretti brood, remarkable for the fineness and abundance of their wool, are now less sought ster for the colonies, where they do badly and become ickety. The Germana are seeking, then, while preserving this precarious breed, to form flocks of greater size, with longer wool suited for combing and carding purposes. France is called upon, with the object, to furnish improved re-producers; and the Germans, appreciating the animals which French breeders have just sent them, labely and the flocks of France, the Merinos of the Science, and the services rendered to France by the propagation of the Merinos, which now sell, in great part, the sheep folds of the smptra, By successive crossing with the ewes of the district, and then with the single production of wool of average fineness, coupled with a sufficient qua that "they are as much sought after, and as highly prized as ever."

The Russians in Volmynia,—A Polish nobleman, writing from Volhynia, gives a dreadful account of the state of affairs. He says: "The Government officials and the Greek prises do all in their power to put the Greeks against the Catholics; and Russian soldiers, disguised as pessents, with all the ruffians who have been let loose from the prisons for this purpose, scour the country, attacking the country seats on their road where there is a chance of plunder, pillaging, burning, and putting to death all they contain, and destroying whatever comes in their way. The cruelties perpetrated by those bands are incredible. Not content with simply putting to death, they invent new tortures every day. They acrew their victims with iron screws to the walls, knock their teeth down their throats, tear out their eyes and tongue, and saw living men into pieces; the women they outrage, and then murder, as well as their children. My pen cannot describe to what a fearful death we are every day exposed, and yet we must not complain; for the committees of enquiry which are sent to ascertain the truth of these atrocities, slways end by rewarding the perpetrators of them, finding that they had good reason for acting in that way. After the engagements which took place in this neighbourhood—at Glawsita, Miropol, and other places—the Russians forbade any assistance to be given to the wounded Poles; and, the more effectually to prevent it, ordered the wounded to be buried with the dead. Our priests were murdered at the feet of our alters while in the act of officiating. With all this we have not the right to leave our estates, but we are obliged to wait patiently the cruel death which will certainly fall to our lot; for the pensants in their simplicity, tell us that the Government has informed them that on a certain given day all Catholice, rich and poor allike, are to be exterminated—this being the expectation we now live in."

A special general meeting of the shareholders in the City Bank was held to-day, at noon, in the Chamber of Commerce, for the purpose of electing the first five directors and two The meeting was numerously attended, there being about two hundred shareholders present. Mr. W. Love, M.L.A., was voted to the chair. Mr. W. Love, M.L.A., was voted to the chair. There were eighteen candidates for the direction, the ballot was consequently proceeded with. Messrs. J. Young, J. Alger, and A. S. Webster were elected scrutineers, and at half-past five o'clock the following gentlemen having the highest number of votes were declared elected:—Mr. J. L. Montefiore, 1356 votes; Mr. S. H. Dangar, 1084 votes; Mr. W. Harbottle, 869 votes; Mr. Alexander Thomson, 739 votes; and Mr. George Thornton, 449 votes. Messrs. J. Alger and O. B. A vote of thanks was awarded to the chairman, the scrutithanks was awarded to the chairman, the scruti-neers, and the provisional committee, and the proceedings terminated.

A meeting called by advertisement of gentlemen interested in the purchase and sale of wool, tallow, and hides, was held to-day at Clark's hotel, Circular Quay, "for the purpose of considering what improvements may be effected in the present method of conducting public sales." The attendance was rather numerous. Mr. G. R. Hurst was voted to the chair. The object of the meeting, as stated by chair. The object of the meeting, as stated by those who took part in the proceedings, was to bring about an alteration in the present system of conducting sales, which it was represented was extremely unsatisfactory both to buyers and sellers. It was stated that sufficient time was not afforded to buyers for the inspection of the wool, and that it would be a great convenience to them if the produce were sold, not at the stores but in some public room, such as the Exchange. The improper manner in which the wool was stacked was also complained of. It was recommended that the produce should be on view at an early hour in the morning, and that it should be sold in the afternoon. The annoyance of having bring about an alteration in the present system o stand in the produce store for several hours was also dwelt upon, and it was desired that the buyers should be accommodated with seats and desks, as they were in the London and the Melrooms. After some remarks had been made in favour of an alteration of the ystem of conducting sales, it was unanimously resolved, on the motion of Mr. Robert Graham, seconded by Mr. J. H. Atkinson:-

"1. That the present system of conducting sales of produce is very inconvenient to buyers, and causes much unnecessary loss of time. That in the opinion of this meeting it is very desirable that all sales of wool and sheepskins should be held on and all sales of tallow, hides, &c., on in each week; and that the said sales should be held in the afternoon of each day at such public office or place of business as may hereafter be con-sidered most convenient." The following reso-lution was proposed by Mr. Bray, seconded by Mr. Kummerer, and carried :-" That the fol-lowing gentlemen be appointed a committee to confer with the produce auctioneers, and to make the arrangements necessary for carrying out the objects of the foregoing resolution. Messrs. Bray, Kummerer, Hinchcliff, Binnie, Hurst, Graham, and F. Ebsworth," The meeting was thereupon adjourned to that day week.

The premiers known as the Woolloomooloo Steam Saw and Moulding Mills.

The preuses known as the Woolloomooloo Bisam Saw and Moulding Mills.

This important property is well and favourably known as one possessed of every requisite for a large and profitable trade, while from its compactness and the improvements which have been cone antly introduced into the machinery, can be worked at considerably less cost than any similar establishment where an jequal amount of work is turned out. In its arrangements everything has been done with a view to the saving of labour, and the prompiness with which orders to any extent may be executed.

It consists of a large block of freehold land, having a frontage of 180 feet to Dowling-street, 180 feet to Dukestreet, and 100 feet to a recerved lane leading from one to the other, and being in the immediate vicinity of the new sircular quay. Woolloomooloo Bay, which is now all but completed. It may be truly said to be in a position not to be surpassed in the whole city.

The plant, which is complete in every part, has been laid down at a very great cost, and is throughout of the best description.

A 3 ton derrick is so placed on the wharf as to be settled.

laid down at a very great cost, and is throughout of the best description.

A 3 ton derrick is so placed on the wharf as to be available for putting every log of timber either on to the saw sits or the traversing carriages, which latter run along a line of rails laid down through the premises, branching of te each machine, when with very trifling hand isbour it is deposited and carried off again when sawn, in lite manner. The buildings consist of a two-story range of 7 x 26, beneath which on the ground floor are the saw tables and frame as follows:—

A saw table by Parsons, with feed motion and all the latest improvements, one of the best in the colony.

A smaller saw bench for jobbing work.

A vertical log frame, in which from 15 to 25 saws are worked, and

A vertical deal frame, which cuts from 15 to 20 saws are worked, and

A vertical deal frame, which cuts from 15 to 20 saws with a great variety of irons for every conceivable style of monifoling, imported from England at a large cost, and greatly improved since it has been in use.

A moutiding machine for joiners' work, saches sad small mouldings, with all the necessary frome.

A morticing machine.

A new-bench for ripping out joiners' work; and an unright gig saw, with sadels, for cutting chair backs.

The second floor is a large carpenter's shop, well lighted, fitted up with 10 benches, fixed and otherwise, and an apparatus for beating glue by steam.

The engine-house is conveniently situated at the end of this building, and contains a 20 horse-power engine of the best construction, made by P. N. Russell and Co., with 25 horse flue boiler, dismeter of cylinder 16 inches, longth of stroke 30 inches, and attached to it a water heating apparatus, by which the getting up of sissum is greatly facilitated. The economy with which the furnace is fired to worthy of special consideration, no other fuel being used to keep in motion all the machinery on the pramises than saw dut, shavings, &c., and a very small quantity of the smallest coal screenings.

Attached to the surpless of saws, both circular and verifical, sufficient for all the requirements of the establishment.

Above this is the turners' shop, fitted with four good lather and a small saw bench for cores crattle first he trees.

punch and a full complement of saws, both circular and vestical, sufficient for all the requirements of the establishment.

Above this is the turners' shep, fitted with four good lather and a small saw bench for cross cutting for the turners. At the other end of the yard is the box makers' shop, 52 123, and above it a cabinet makers' shop the same size, also fitted with carpenters' benches, $c.

A djudning is a store 65 x 22, for finished joiners' and cabinet makers' work, and in the same range are the turnery store, door and seab store, and the moulding racks.

There are also extensive covered racks for drying ceder, capable of holding a very large quantity of boards, making the whole one of the most complete establishments of its size in the colony. It being in full operation at the present moment is a guarantee that it is in perfect working order, the belitting in nearly every justance having been lately renewed. The trade attached to it too is of considerable importance, the work turned out being known all ever the country as of a superior description; and the large amount of business done both in the time of the late proprietors, and during the last two years down to the present hour is a sufficient indication of what the mills are capable, and of the requirement there is far them in the sastern portion of the town. But if they be required how how much more so will they be, on the completion of the new Circular Quay, which will take place before the end of the present year, when the veat spane of ground now being reclaimed shall be devoted to the erection of warshouses, shops, and swellings, which will be needed immediately the wharf is thrown open for use. The extension of Kingstreet, which is fully determined on, will abut on to the property, thus bringing it into the very heart of the town, increasing tenfold its value for all business purposes.

Such an opportunity as the present is rarely met with to obtain a valuable saw wills plant in an eligible situation, with a first-class trade and connection, ready made, to hand, and as it was formerly purchased under peculiar circum-stances at less than its crigit al cost, so now will it be sold regardless of its real value.

The terms will be of the most liberal character, one half the purchase money being allowed to remain chargeable on the property at 7 per cent., and the remainder in easy payments. Hobert Town Hardwood.
